SANTA BARBARA CAN TASTE the exotic style of the Brazilian Baroque period at the new expanded showroom of Brazil Baroque.

Andrea Fonseca, the designer and proprietor of an exclusive line of handpainted furnishings built from 100 year old rosewood reclaimed from the old estates of Minas Geris, Brazil, has created an elegant yet powerful line of furniture.

Ms. Fonseca, an architect and designer from Rio de Janeiro, has partnered with Brazilian Artisans to develop these handmade furnishings. "We transform wood used over a hundred years ago in walls floors, and ceilings into magnificent pieces of furniture, while conserving and avoiding waste of these rare materials," she shared. Brazil Baroque is committed to preserving Brazil's rain forest by only using recycled antique hardwood, which will be sustainable for generations to come.

Brazil Baroque also offers their own elegant line of upholstery and wrought iron, not to mention 18th and 19th century antiquities from Brazil and Argentina.

With two architects and two designers on staff, Brazil Baroque offers complete design services, from architectural design and support, space planning, custom and antique furnishings and cabinetry, custom sofas and bedding, and custom lighting, to accessories.

An architect and fine artist herself, Ms. Fonseca first came to Santa Barbara in 1998 when she studied English at Santa Barbara City College. "My favorite part of the business is working with the artisans, who do it with so much love - like me. This job is about passion and desire." In addition she noted, "it's also wonderful that we can market these beautiful and affordable pieces here in California, because in Brazil these artists cannot make a living. Because we own the factory in Tiradentes, we can actually create and build anything a client desires."
